STAT

SUBJECT: Women's History Week

REFERENCE: Employee Bulletin No. 914, 22 February 1982

1. Literature, the media, and recorded history have not reflected the realities of women's lives accurately. Women live and have lived in an environment defined by men and dominated by men and yet women have shaped and influenced that environment and all humankind. Women's History Week (7-13 March 1982) has been designated by Congress and President Reagan to pay tribute to the significant contribution women have made in developing our country.

2. To commemorate Women's History Week at CIA, Dr. Sharon Lord has been invited to speak to Agency employees on "Women in Transition" at 2 p.m. on 10 March 1982.

3. What is happening in our society with women as a key element in the work force should be of interest to everyone, especially our managers and supervisors. I encourage you to attend.
